

What is claimed is:

1. A composite elastic member of socket safety protective cover comprising vertical elastic plates, a horizontal elastic and a fixing section; wherein, a highest point of each vertical elastic plate forms a support point, the horizontal elastic plate is located at a side of the vertical elastic plates, and the fixing section is located out of action ranges of the vertical and horizontal elastic plates.
2. The composite elastic member of socket safety protective cover in accordance with claim 1, wherein the fixing section is a vertically folded plate body, which is provided with an embedding having sustaining forces and extended from the plate body in a downwardly slanting manner